INTRODUCTION

ACTS

Acts reveals the history of God working through the lives of the followers of Jesus after Christ's ascension on the Mount of Olives outside of Jerusalem. Luke, a physician, traveling companion of the apostle Paul, and the inspired writer of the Gospel of Luke, penned it. Luke addressed both his gospel and Acts to an individual named Theophilus, about whom nothing else is recorded in scripture.

Acts was probably written between 63-70 AD. Many scholars believe Luke wrote it while he was in Rome with Paul around 63 A.D.

Acts is a New Testament book of history, covering a period of about 30 years. It tells of the beginning of the church in Jerusalem, the spreading of the gospel to Jews and then to Gentiles, and the beginning of Christian congregations throughout the known world. Readers are told about religious persecution, missionary journeys, and Paul's imprisonment in Rome. The first twelve chapters concentrate mainly on Peter; thereafter, Paul is the central connecting figure.

Acts links the gospels and the letters of the New Testament, furnishing important background information for the epistles. It is a book of conversions, and lays out the pattern of salvation for those who believe in Christ.

Major characters in Acts include Peter, John, Barnabas, James, Stephen, Philip, Saul (or Paul), Dorcas, Cornelius, Timothy, Silas, Lydia, Aquila and Pricilla, and Apollos.

A good Bible atlas is an invaluable tool in studying Acts – especially during the sections on the travels of Paul. Scholars estimate that Paul traveled over 10,000 miles on his journeys spreading the gospel to the Roman world. Many of the travel details can be seen on a map of the world at that time, and will greatly facilitate understanding of the text.

The reason God frowned upon marriages between Jews and Gentiles was because most Gentiles worshipped idols, and they influenced the Jews to sin. God had told the Israelites, “You must not intermarry with them, because they will surely _____” (I Kings 11:2)

King Solomon did not obey God’s command, and he married many foreign women. As he grew old, his wives “_____” (I Kings 11:4)

Not all Gentiles were idol worshippers. Some of them believed in God and accepted the Jewish religion. They were called proselytes, aliens, or converts to Judaism. One of the Ten Commandments said that no one, including “the _____ within your gates” should do any work on the Sabbath day (Exodus 20:19) “Jews and _____ to _____” heard Peter preach on the Day of Pentecost. (Acts 2:11) Among the seven men chosen to care for the Grecian widows was “_____ of Antioch, a _____ to _____.” (Acts 6:5) When Paul and Barnabas were in Antioch of Pisidia, “Many of the Jews and devout _____ to Judaism” followed them. (Acts 13:43)

Jesus came first to his own people, the Jews. John 1:11 says that “He came to that which was his own, but his own _____.” He came to give salvation to everyone who believes, “First for the _____, and then for the _____.” (Romans 1:16)

After his resurrection and ascension, Jesus had to appear to Peter in a vision to show him that he must preach to Gentiles as well as Jews. Peter then was sent to Cornelius, a Gentile, who, unlike most Gentiles, was devout and _____. (Acts 10:2) Peter said to him, “You are well aware that it is against our law for a _____ to associate with a _____ or visit him, but God has shown me that I should not call any man _____ or _____.” (Acts 10:28) Cornelius was the first Gentile to become a Christian.

Paul, a devout Jew, was converted to Christ. God chose him to be an evangelist, whose special mission was to the Gentiles.

Another group of people often mentioned in the Bible were the Samaritans. Samaria was the region between Judea and Galilee. In 721 B.C. Sargon of Assyria captured many of its inhabitants. Some of the Israelites that remained intermarried with the Assyrians. The result was a nation of mixed blood and mixed religion. They accepted only the first five books of the Old Testament, and they worshipped, not in Jerusalem, but in Mount Gerizim.

The Jews, who despised them, felt that being a Samaritan was the same as being demon possessed. (John 8:48) Jesus' conversation with a woman at a _____ in Samaria (John 4:6,7) was remarkable, for, as John wrote, "Jews do not _____ with Samaritans." (John 4:9) When Jesus told the parable of the Samaritan who helped the wounded man, he asked the expert in the law, "Which of these three do you think was a neighbor to the man who fell into the hands of robbers?" The expert in the law, a Jew, could not bring himself to say, "The Samaritan." He said,

"_____". (Luke 10:37)

Jesus showed by his life and his teachings that we should not despise anyone, and Paul wrote

_____". (Galatians 3:28)

(This series of questions is included to help the student better understand the relationship between Jews and Gentiles and the importance it has for the early church in the book of Acts.)
